

GRAND JURY ON TRAIL OF ROBBER

Developments Now Indicate
Indictments in Utah
Bank Case.

UTMOST SECRECY NOTED

BELIEVED THAT STOLEN GOLD HAS BEEN LOCATED.

Although there is no official warrant for the belief, indications are that the federal grand jury has at last struck a lead that is fast resulting in startling developments in connection with the robbery of the Utah National bank in January. The grand jury, during the last two days, has been hedged about with every safeguard of secrecy. The names of witnesses appearing before it are no longer given out, and the urgent request has been made by District Attorney Booth that the newspapers do not disclose the names of the persons brought into the room for examination. It is the statement of the district attorney that the publication of the names of the witnesses who are now appearing might easily set all plans awry and frustrate the ends which are sought to be obtained and which are in a fair way of realization.

Persons about the federal building who are unofficially familiar with what has been done in connection with the grand jury inquiry since its beginning a month ago are of the opinion that rich ground has been struck by the district attorney and the eighteen men who are assisting him in developing the prospect. Heretofore newspapers have not been asked to suppress the names of witnesses, but were tacitly permitted to print them if they could learn them. Now, however, the anti-room of the grand jury room, where the witnesses congregate while they await the call from the room "beyond," is forbidden ground for newspaper men and Judge Marshall himself has cautioned every one about the building who has any connection with the grand jury or its workings to be extremely discreet.

There is talk that the long investigation has at last resulted in concentrating attention upon a sharp point, and this sharp point is now under consideration. It is even said that it would not be surprising if the grand jury had a pretty clear suspicion of where the stolen $100,000 or at least a part of it is concealed.

The grand jurors themselves apparently are more than ever determined to bore to the bottom of the mysterious affair. One of the evidences of this is that a decision has been reached to maintain today as usual, although it is the custom for grand jurors to "lay off" on Saturday and in a measure, at least, attend to their neglected business affairs. With this jury, however, there is a manifest eagerness to remain steadily and vigorously at work until the end is in sight. Therefore, this jury will be found in its accustomed place at 10 o'clock this forenoon.

It is now believed there will be at least two indictments returned, with a strong probability of more.

ASSAILS HER CHARACTER

William J. Watson Attempts to Show
Wife Is Unfit to Have the Custody of Child.

The now notorious Watson divorce case was before Judge Morse yesterday. William J. Watson is suing March C. Watson for divorce on the ground of infidelity, and recently the court ordered him to pay $20 a month alimony until the case is finally heard.

For his alleged failure to pay this amount he was put on contempt proceedings, but was discharged by Judge Morse. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in discussing the custody of the 5-year-old girl until the final decision in the case is rendered. Watson introduced some sensational testimony as to his wife's conduct, with the intention to show that she is not a proper person to care for the child. Judge Morse ordered that the child be surrendered to the mother until June 10.

MRS. ARMSTRONG AT REST

Simple Funeral Service Conducted by Rev. P. A. Simpkins—Exquisite
Floral Tributes.

Only the family and a few close friends were present at the last service held yesterday at 2 o'clock in memory of Mrs. Lucinda J. Armstrong, wife of Le Roy Armstrong, editor of the Intermountain Republican.

A simple service, with brief scripture reading and prayer, conducted by Rev. P. A. Simpkins, preceded a message of comfort for the bereaved and of loving appreciation of the life and character of the dead. Mrs. Armstrong was a woman of unusual sweetness and strength of character.

Mrs. Emma R. Morris sang "O Love Divine." The sympathy of a wide circle of friends was spoken in the masses of exquisite floral tributes that were heaped upon the casket. The body found temporary sepulchre in the Argenta vault at Mt. Olivet, awaiting the arrival of a son, Bede, from the east.

WEDDED ON HORSEBACK FIFTY YEARS AGO

JOHN MCDONALD,

MRS. JOHN MCDONALD,

Their golden wedding anniversary will be observed this evening.

At the Lion house this evening President Joseph F. Smith entertains in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of two of his lifelong friends, Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald, who have been residents of Utah for over fifty years. Mr. McDonald lived in Nauvoo and came across the plains to Utah in 1850. Mrs. McDonald, then Miss Amelia Crossland, came from London, England, to this country, and to Salt Lake in 1853. A romance marks the occasion of their wedding. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Jesse Little on May 17, 1858, to whose house near the top of one of the southern mountains the bride and groom rode on horseback and were married without dismounting. Mr. McDonald has been active in business here since the early fifties. He established the first steam candy factory and his grocery store, which was one of the largest in the city, dated from 1890. A son, J. G. McDonald, has continued the candy business and has now a large factory.

Five sons and three daughters are all living near the parents in this city. They are John McDonald, Jr., J. G. McDonald, Julius William C. and George W. McDonald. Mrs. George B. Margetts, Mrs. F. E. Margetts and Mrs. Richard Chamberlain.

Sunday, May 17, is the wedding anniversary, and on Monday Mr. and Mrs. McDonald will entertain 200 of their friends at a reception between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m. at their home, 18 East Fourth Street.

SHERIFF'S GRAPHIC DECEPTION OF THE SHOOTING OF GARCIA

Two Officers on Each of Four Corners at Street Intersection
Awaited Bandit's Approach—Garcia Disarmed
by Expert Marksmanship.

Sheriff C. Frank Emery returned yesterday morning at 8:15 o'clock from Seattle, where he located Garcia, one of the murderers of Policeman Ford, Sheriff Emery described graphically the killing of the bandit and the gun fight on the streets, resulting in Garcia's capture and death.

The sheriff said that Garcia never admitted that he killed Policeman Ford, although he did not deny it. The most significant statement credited to Garcia is:

"Sullivan and I were together on the night of the holdup and shooting, and when we heard of it we planned to get the money and get out of the country. I guess they'll hang me if I ever get better."

Sheriff Emery declines to give the name of the friend who betrayed Garcia, though he laughs at the statement that Belcher was the man who acted as the stool pigeon.

"I first learned positively that Garcia was in Seattle on the Friday prior to the shooting of Garcia, and I went to Seattle that night. When I arrived there I went to police headquarters and explained my mission. Captain Tennant was detailed to assist me on the case. Garcia was dressed in the capture, but he was unable to find Garcia until Wednesday afternoon. He told me on that day that he had located our man and we planned to have this fellow bring Garcia down First avenue."

"Knowing that Garcia was a desperate man, we decided that it would be wise to have several officers on the corner of First and Pike street to assist in his capture. In the party stationed at this corner there were Captain Tennant and Detectives Holland, Adams, Clark, Peterson, McClurg and Griffith. Garcia and I were on the northwest corner of the street intersection and two officers were on each of the other corners."

"It was about 7:30 in the evening when we saw Garcia and our man walking down the street. Garcia was dressed in a long frock coat and he afterwards learned he had stolen from a minister in the city. He stepped off the sidewalk on the corner and started to cross the street. As he did so the expression of his face changed and he tugged at his coat pockets. Detective Holland, who was stationed on the southeast corner of the street, but a few feet from Garcia, fired. The bullet struck him in the left side, just below the shoulder. This was the wound that killed Garcia. The bandit staggered, drawing a gun from either side coat pocket. Before he had the opportunity to shoot, Detective Adams, who is a dead shot, fired twice. The first bullet went into Garcia's right wrist and the other lodged in the left wrist. Both of Garcia's guns went spinning on the pavement. Had it not been for these two shots, Garcia would undoubtedly have fired his guns and might have shot one of us."

Close in on Garcia.
"At the beginning of the shooting we all closed in on Garcia, and Detectives Peterson and Clark fired three shots. These shots were fired in the air. Before we got to Garcia he had fallen face downward on the pavement. We took him to the emergency hospital at the police station. The doctor examined his wounds and thought that he could not live ten minutes. That is why I wired to Salt Lake that he had been killed."

BURGLARS BOLD IN OPERATIONS

Two Houses Entered and Valuable Loot Secured From One of Them.

ONLY JEWELRY SELECTED

THIEVES ARE CHOICE IN THEIR TASTE.

Clever burglars ransacked two houses last night, stealing several hundred dollars' worth of jewelry at one house, but securing nothing at the other. The manner in which an entrance was effected and the nature of the articles stolen, main the police positive that the burglars who entered one of the houses last night were the same ones who made a rich haul at the home of J. H. Owens and E. W. Matthews a few nights ago.

It was at the home of Alex. Pickering, of the Pickering Transfer company, who lives at 70 South First West street, that the burglars secured the jewelry stolen last evening. Mr. and Mrs. Pickering were out driving at the time the burglary occurred. The thieves broke the glass in the kitchen door, and reaching through the aperture, drew the bolt. One inside they proceeded to ransack the entire dwelling, but stealing only jewelry that could be disposed of without difficulty.

Things Topsy Turvy.

When the Pickering returned home at 5 o'clock in the evening they found that the burglars had done things of value to them. Trunks were emptied on the floor, the contents of drawers thrown about and the closets ransacked. Every piece of jewelry in the house was taken.

A partial list of the plunder secured by the robbers includes a ring, with three opals; a moonstone ring, a solitaire diamond ring, a sunburst set in opals, a string of gold beads with three small bangles, a gold pin with an opal setting, a bird design, a garnet pin, a moonstone pin, a lady's gold watch, with the monogram "M. M. P." engraved on the outside of the case and "Alex to May, Dec. 6, 1898," on the inside; $12 in cash and three small pocketbooks.

Secure No Loot.

At the residence of Mr. Owens and Mr. Matthews, at Seventh South and Third streets, two blocks from this residence, burglars a week ago effected an entrance through the kitchen door in the same manner, and their search through the house took jewelry of a similar nature, which convinces the police that the same men robbed these two houses.

The other residence entered last evening was that of Mary E. Foster, at 1123 Princeton avenue. In this instance the burglars entered the house through a window while the family was at the theatre. Here, also, the burglars made a thorough search of the house, going through drawers and closets, but as far as could be ascertained by the owners last night nothing was stolen.

A private safe may be rented in the fire and burglar proof vault of the Salt Lake Security & Trust Co., 32-34 Main street, $3.50 per year and upwards.

Smith was arrested while trying to ride the bicycle at Merced's bicycle store for $10. The bicycle belonged to Clarence Poulson, who left it standing near a tree at the Salt Palace.

We have a fifty-foot corner on Brigham street, facing south, for $3,050, with paving, sewer and sidewalk tax paid. Can you equal that? You know you can't. It's practically $80 a front foot.

Our fire insurance companies were the leaders in paying losses incurred in the recent Chelsea fire. And they all paid dollar for dollar. The very first to complete payments was one of our companies, and the others were among the first.

That's the way they did at San Francisco, Baltimore, Toronto and other cities that have sustained conflagrations. That's the way they'll do if Salt Lake burns up. ## VICTIM OF MATRIMONIAL MISDEAL MAKES KILLING IN DIVORCE COURT

Oliver B. Tingley appeared in the divorce court yesterday as the protector of a victim of a matrimonial misdeal. Oliver thought he had drawn a queen when Florence married him, but the cards appeared to have been stacked against him.

Oliver was relegated to a life of high with his life partner, who objected to playing opposite him at dances and other functions because of his calling. Oliver tried to sweeten the deal with a pair of earrings and $1,200 in cash. Florence had a pair of Jacks, all right, and took the pot. Oliver was left with a bad hand. He then decided he was the fall guy in a game of slough and tried a solo on his own account.

"When she left me she said I would never hear from her again, and if I did it would be through her attorneys," Tingley declared.

"Did you have any trouble before she left?" asked Judge Morse.

"Well, about a week before," said Tingley. "I caught her with the picture of another man and tore it up. I tell you what she wanted, and that was money. Shortly before she went away I gave her $1,200 and bought her earrings which cost $50. It was about the third pair of those things which she had given her since our marriage in 1886. When she said that about attorneys I expected she would wait until I had another run of luck and then bring suit for divorce in anticipation of getting some of it."

He also declared that when his wife found out he had brought suit she wrote to him and asked that he make a settlement on her if she would agree not to fight the case. This he refused to do.

"She was just bluffing," said Tingley in regard to the letter.

Mark H. Clays of Brigham, where Tingley resides, was a witness and corroborated his testimony.

The divorce was granted and also the custody of a 12-year-old boy who is living with his grandparents at Gold Beach, Ore.

Susie T. Knudsen, a slender little woman, wearing a big brown straw hat with white ribbons, was also present. She was granted a divorce. She married Emil F. Knudsen Nov. 10, 1904, and declared that last September she went to Nevada and has sent her only $40 since. Her mother testified that she had supported the wife since her husband left and had paid for her many doctor bills.

Anna A. Rockwell drew her decree in divorce from her husband, Howard.
